

Active Kids Online: Helping Children Find Their Voice with Confidence

Active Kids Online is an online learning platform created to help children become confident speakers, expressive thinkers, and comfortable communicators. The platform focuses on building real communication skills through speech, drama, storytelling, and spoken English, all taught in a supportive and child-friendly environment.

The company was founded by Tarannum Sheikh, an educator, communication coach, and TEDx Speaker. With years of experience in public speaking and working closely with children, Tarannum started Active Kids Online with a simple belief — every child deserves the confidence to speak clearly and express themselves without fear. Her work has helped many children overcome stage fear, improve articulation, and develop a strong sense of self-expression.

What makes Active Kids Online truly different is its collaboration with Trinity College London. It is the only platform that combines structured online learning with preparation for Trinity Speech and Drama examinations. Students are guided through the exam process step by step, helping them build skills that are recognised internationally.

In addition to exam preparation, Active Kids Online also works with Trinity College London on podcast-based learning, where children get a chance to practise real speaking in a live and meaningful format. These sessions allow students to apply what they learn, build confidence in their voice, and speak naturally in front of an audience.

Today, Active Kids Online supports children from different countries and backgrounds, helping them grow into confident communicators. The platform is trusted by parents for its practical approach, experienced mentors, and focus on long-term confidence rather than rote learning.
